

Six main components of our activity

The Miyagi Disaster Mental Health Care Center operates with the following six main components.
This report also concerns itself with primarily these areas.

Resident Support

Preventive mental health care and mental wellness counseling and support for disaster victims

- Counseling and support services for victims (one-on-one counseling, telephone counseling, etc.)
- Community programming and event planning for residents of disaster areas

Support for Supporters

Mental health support services for municipal staff, provisional support workers and other support providers

- Professional aid for local governments
- Consultation, supervision, participation in case conferences
- Establishment of mental health help desk for support workers
- Administrative support

Raising Public Awareness

Mental health awareness and education

- Community workshops and lectures
- Social activities for residents of affected areas
- Design and distribution of educational pamphlets, flyers, PR materials, home page, etc.

Human Resource Development

Promotion and training for mental health professionals and support workers

- Mental health training in the event of earthquake disasters
- Support skill training
- Case study training
- Conferences related to mental health care in earthquake recovery

Research

Understanding the current status of disaster-affected areas and people through research and surveys

Support for Various Activities

Collaboration and coordination with other organizations to facilitate joint support programs